

Are You Covered?

A Homeowner's Insurance Guide

No one likes to think about disasters. Severe weather, fire, theft—or even a seemingly small issue like a broken pipe—can wreak havoc on your home and result in thousands of dollars in damages. Fortunately, a good home insurance policy covers your home—as well as the belongings in it—in case disaster strikes. While terms vary, most policies also help to protect you from liability if someone outside your household becomes injured on your property. And that liability coverage is often extended to include damage you (or anyone living in your household) may do to someone else's property.¹

Homeowners Insurance Covers Things Like:

- Structure
- Roof
- Windows
- Furniture/Personal Belongings
- Liability for Non-Residents Injured on Property
- Liability for Damage or Injury Caused by You or Your Pets

Most Standard Policies DON'T Cover²:

- Malfunctioning Systems and Appliances
- Floods or Earthquakes
- Slow Leaks
- Power Failures
- Neglect or Aging
- Faulty Repairs

“While you never want to leave yourself without a safety net, you also don’t want to overpay for insurance you don’t need (and will hopefully rarely use). Aim to strike a balance that will provide you with adequate protection at an affordable price.”

HOME WARRANTIES

Some homeowners choose to supplement their insurance coverage by purchasing a home warranty, which covers many of the systems and appliances in your home that are NOT covered by homeowners insurance. While policy terms and coverage vary, a home warranty will often cover the cost (after deductible) to repair or replace components of your HVAC, electrical, plumbing and some appliances that fail due to age or typical wear and tear. Unlike homeowners insurance, home warranties aren’t required by mortgage companies. But many homeowners like the added financial protection and peace of mind that home warranties provide.³

MINIMIZE RISK, MAXIMIZE VALUE

Now that you understand the basics of homeowners insurance, you should be ready to start shopping for a policy that best fits your needs and budget. Your goal should be to minimize your risk while maximizing the value your policy provides. While you never want to leave yourself without a safety net, you also don’t want to overpay for insurance you don’t need (and will hopefully rarely use). Aim to strike a balance that will provide you with adequate protection at an affordable price.

Once you’ve purchased your policy, avoid setting the annual renewal on autopilot. Instead, take some time to consider factors that have changed over the past year. Home improvements, a shift in market conditions, a new home-based business, or even growth in your overall net worth could mean it’s time to reassess your coverage.
